During my stay I lived in Bob’s “Hilltop Hotel.” Across the street was the primary school as well as the health clinic. I helped teach various grade levels in all of the basic subjects. While teaching, I met many of the children of the village. This was the Standard III class I taught.
I also volunteered at the health clinic. There were children's clinics, mobile clinics, regular outpatient and prenatal clinics on various days of the week. Each week we went on mobile clinic to the more remote villages that did not have easy access to medical facilities. We identified symptoms, diagnosed and dispensed medication as well as gave immunizations to the children.

During our stay, we made many friendships. The Che family became our closest friends. We always played with and helped the children. They invited us to a hot dinner during one of our last nights in Belize!
