Charuru, Kenya

Here are just a couple of the faces of Charuru. Charuru is a small village located five travel hours outside of Nairobi. Even though we had no electricity or running water, there was no scarcity of love.

Charuru from a nearby mound. The village was surrounded by tea fields. Tea-picking was the predominant money maker for the villagers.

Francis helped us “mow” our lawn. This is a picture of our yard. We spent many nights playing games and trading pictures and drawings by candlelight with Francis. What a smile!
