Siena Fast Facts

This week our Fast Facts will take a look at our January graduates. While most students at Siena graduate in May, we do have a fair number who graduate in August and January.

The chart below shows the number of January graduates for the past five years.

The numbers have been relatively stable, although this past January saw a bit of an increase.

Most students matriculate into Siena as new, first-time students, but we do welcome a number of transfer students. The chart below shows the percentage of graduates by matriculation status for both January graduates and May graduates for the past five years.

These data show that a much higher percentage of January graduates are transfer students. This is not surprising, of course, since transfer students enter Siena with variable credit hours and are often part-time students, so they are more likely to graduate at non-traditional times.

Next week we'll look at some other characteristics of January graduates.

As always, if you have any ideas for future Fast Facts, please let us know.
