

June 1, 2017

Siena Fast Facts

In the next few weeks, our Fast Facts will take a look at how Siena compares to our peer institutions on a number of key institutional measures. The data are based on the IPEDS Data Feedback Reports, which are produced annually by the National Center for Education Statistics. (The appendix at the bottom of the page shows the institutions included for this peer comparison.)

The chart below shows the average enrollment for the peer institutions compared to Siena.

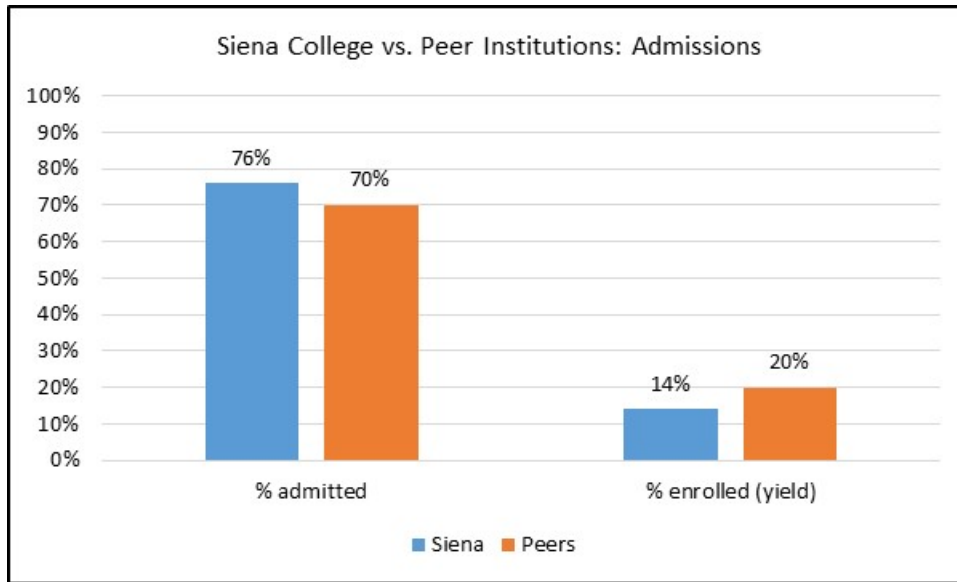

These data indicate that Siena College is somewhat larger than our peer institutions. Neither Siena nor the peer institutions have large populations of either part-time or graduate students.

The chart below shows the basic demographic makeup of peer institutions compared to Siena.

Compared to our peers, Siena is a bit less diverse and less female, although the differences are not marked.

The chart below shows basic admissions data.

Compared to our peers, Siena is slightly less selective (i.e. we admit a higher percentage of applicants) and has a somewhat lower yield rate (i.e. the percent of admitted students who actually enroll).

We'll continue to look at some peer comparison data next week. Stay tuned!

Appendix: Peer comparison group for Siena College, used in IPEDS Data Feedback Reports

IPEDS DFR 2017 Peer Institutions
Augustana College (Rock Island, IL)
Bryant University (Smithfield, RI)
Calvin College (Grand Rapids, MI)
Carthage College (Kenosha, WI)
Colgate University (Hamilton, NY)
Concordia College at Moorhead (Moorhead, MN)
Dickinson College (Carlisle, PA)
Franklin College (Franklin, IN)
Gettysburg College (Gettysburg, PA)
Guilford College (Greensboro, NC)
Gustavus Adolphus College (Saint Peter, MN)
Hope College (Holland, MI)
Juniata College (Huntingdon, PA)
King's College (Wilkes-Barre, PA)
Lake Forest College (Lake Forest, IL)
Linfield College-McMinnville Campus (McMinnville, OR)
Luther College (Decorah, IA)
Manhattan College (Riverdale, NY)
Merrimack College (North Andover, MA)
Messiah College (Mechanicsburg, PA)
Monmouth College (Monmouth, IL)
Moravian College (Bethlehem, PA)
Muhlenberg College (Allentown, PA)
Ohio Northern University (Ada, OH)
Rhodes College (Memphis, TN)
Saint Michael's College (Colchester, VT)
St Bonaventure University (Saint Bonaventure, NY)
Stonehill College (Easton, MA)
Susquehanna University (Selinsgrove, PA)
The College of Wooster (Wooster, OH)
Western New England University (Springfield, MA)
Whitworth University (Spokane, WA)
Wittenberg University (Springfield, OH)