

RETURNEE TOOLKIT: INTEGRATING YOUR EXPERIENCE ABROAD FOR YOUR FUTURE

SIENA COLLEGE
CENTER FOR INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS

Nationally, about 10 percent of U.S. students study abroad during their undergraduate career.

In doing so, you have set yourself apart.

The challenge is to maintain and develop the skills you gained while abroad, and effectively market and express these skills to future employers, graduate schools, and organizations. That is where we come in! Use the resources in this toolkit to learn what you can do to successfully prepare for a global future.

CONTENTS

3.....Upon Return to Campus: Strategies to Stay Globally-Minded

5.....Defining Your Time Abroad: Translating Moments into Skills and Qualities

8.....Articulating Your Experience Abroad: Tips for Your Resume, Cover Letter and Interview

13.....Digitizing Your Program Abroad: Tailoring Your Online Profiles for Employers

16.....Going Again: Additional Opportunities for International Experience

23.....Further Resources on Campus, Around the World, and Online

UPON RETURN TO CAMPUS: STRATEGIES TO STAY GLOBALLY-MINDED

Whether you go abroad the end of your freshman year or the beginning of your senior year, you may feel that you have a limited time to “unpack” your experience once you return to campus. Fear not! There is plenty of time to clarify how your international experience could influence your career goals and impact your graduate school or job search strategy.

It is up to you to demonstrate the link between your education abroad experience and the specific skills valued by the company or organization you will work for one day. Strengthening and building upon your global mindset will help you to clearly define this link for future employers.

The following are suggested strategies you can employ upon return to Siena:

- Consider further international experiences, such as semester-long study abroad, summer abroad, and international service and advocacy programs.
- Meet with the Center for International Programs staff in Foy Hall 301 to discuss post-graduate international experiences, such as Teach Abroad, international graduate schools, and fellowship programs.
- Visit Career Education and Professional Development in Foy Hall 203 and speak with a career counselor to revise and edit your resume and cover letter to incorporate the new interpersonal skills and intercultural competencies that you developed while abroad.
- Organize and/or participate in campus or community programs that provide opportunities to practice articulating what you learned and the steps you took to gain or strengthen intercultural or professional skills, such as informational events through the Center for International Programs.
- Attend EVOLVE: The Study Abroad Returnee Conference, which brings together Capital Region students and professionals for a day of discussions and workshops to help you understand the value of your experience abroad.
- Discuss your international experience with international students from the country in which you studied to gain a fresh perspective on the culture and values of that society.

- Join the Study Abroad Club to relate with peers of a like mindset and develop initiatives to support outgoing and returning abroad students.
- Register for courses related to the location or academic focus of your program and/or choose assignments that focus on your host country and program-related topics.
- Identify professors on campus who do research in the locations or on the same theme as your program. Visit them during their office hours and discuss your experience and their recommendations for continued study.
- Build upon the research, coursework, or professional experience you started while abroad, such as through the Honors Program, Capstone projects, or the Office of Internship Programs.

DID YOU KNOW?

97% of study abroad students found employment within 12 months of graduation.

DEFINING YOUR TIME ABROAD: TRANSLATING MOMENTS INTO SKILLS AND QUALITIES

During your program abroad, you developed and honed a variety of skills and competencies that are cross-cultural, industry-specific, and/or transferable to your future career plans. However, these skills are not always apparent on-the-surface, and therefore it is important to reflect upon your experience and the career-related strengths you may have gained. For example, did you:

- Work on group projects with students from different cultures and/or backgrounds?
- Meet with professionals at local organizations to gain insights into corporate and industry culture?
- Actively participate in a student club, volunteer organization, or local workplace?
- Learn a foreign language - either in your host country or a country you may have visited - in order to navigate a city, communicate with locals, or simply buy groceries?

Through experiences within and outside of the classroom, studying abroad improved your abilities to:

- Creatively solve problems by applying familiar concepts to unfamiliar situations
- Look at a project or situation from different perspectives
- Be flexible and adaptable to rapidly changing situations and new environments
- Imagine, forecast, analyze, or address business situations from a different cultural frame of reference
- Develop an understanding of global issues in your industry of interest

In order to clearly articulate your experience professionally, you must have an understanding of the key skills you gained. Set aside some time to reflect and consider the following questions as they relate to your experience abroad.

- What did you learn through your coursework, research, service learning, or internship?
- How did your experience abroad enhance your knowledge, skills, and understanding of your intended career field or future prospects?

- What was the most challenging situation you faced while abroad? How did you deal with it? How did the experience help you grow as a person?
- How did you adapt to your new cultural surroundings? Consider examples from academic, social, and work settings. How did this influence your ability to interact successfully with others?
- What was the most significant thing you learned about yourself? How did your experience abroad help you gain an understanding of your work style, clarify your values, or improve your interpersonal skills?

It's important to always think about the skills that are being sought in today's workplace and how they are relevant to what you developed abroad. As you prepare to conduct your job search, rewrite your resume, establish a cover letter, and prepare for interviews, keep in mind the qualities and skills that employers may look for in a candidate who studied abroad and integrate these into your materials. These would include, but are not limited to:

CAREER-RELATED SKILLS

- Enhanced cultural awareness and sensitivity to customs and cultural differences
- Foreign language proficiency
- Adaptability and flexibility
- Ability to identify and achieve goals
- Interpersonal communication skills
- Awareness of global economic, political, and social issues and realities
- Ability to maintain an open mind and be tolerant of others
- Time and resource management
- Problem solving and crisis management
- Learning through listening and observing
- Ability to cope with stress in challenging situations

QUALITIES GAINED

- Appreciation for diversity
- Open-mindedness
- Self-confidence
- Independence
- Self-awareness
- Leadership
- Empathy
- Dedication
- Respect
- Perseverance

Recognizing the need to ensure the career readiness of today's college graduates, the National Association of Colleges and Employers \(NACE\) has defined career readiness as the attainment and demonstration of requisite competencies that broadly prepare college graduates for a successful transition into the workplace. NACE has thus identified the key competencies - or capabilities - that employers are looking for in college graduates, outlined below.

CAREER-READINESS COMPETENCIES

CRITICAL THINKING - Use sound reasoning to analyze issues, make decisions, and overcome problems. Demonstrate originality and inventiveness.

TEAMWORK - Build collaborative relationships with colleagues and customers representing diverse cultures, races, ages, genders, religions, lifestyles, and viewpoints.

LEADERSHIP - Draw on interpersonal skills to coach and motivate others and organize and delegate work. Leverage the strengths of others to achieve goals.

CAREER MANAGEMENT - Identify and articulate skills, strengths, knowledge, and experiences to navigate job options. Understand how to self-advocate for career opportunities.

COMMUNICATIONS SKILLS - Articulate thoughts and ideas clearly and effectively in written and oral forms to people inside and outside of the organization.

DIGITAL TECHNOLOGY - Leverage existing technologies ethically and efficiently to solve problems, complete tasks, and accomplish goals. Effectively adapt to new technologies.

PROFESSIONALISM - Demonstrate personal accountability, effective work habits, integrity, and strong work ethic. Act responsibly and learn from mistakes.

GLOBAL FLUENCY - Value, respect, and learn from diverse cultures, races, ages, genders, sexual orientations, and religions. Demonstrate openness, inclusiveness, and sensitivity.

In summary, your experience abroad provides you with immeasurable skills that fulfill many of these competencies. Global fluency and communications skills are gained through your interactions with your host family, the locals of your host country, and other international students. Overcoming culture shock and engaging in extracurricular activities or community services fulfills critical thinking, teamwork, and leadership. Suffice to say, your experience abroad maximizes each of the skills employers are looking for!

For more information on NACE career competencies and how to connect them with your experience abroad, visit Career Education and Professional Development.

ARTICULATING YOUR EXPERIENCE ABROAD: TIPS FOR YOUR RESUME, COVER LETTER, AND INTERVIEW

You have probably heard that your experience abroad “looks great on a resume,” and that’s right! The challenge is that this experience needs to be effectively articulated in order to have impact. Potential employers or graduate school committees may not understand the advantages and the transformative experience that studying abroad has provided you. It’s your job to coherently translate these experiences and to articulate your newly-honed skills and the value you would contribute by using language relevant to the organization.

Use the tips and tricks below to integrate your experience abroad into your resume, cover letter, and interview. Additional support and individual guidance with a career counselor can be obtained through Career Education and Professional Development.

RESUME

Present your experience abroad in the right location in order to best highlight its value to you and the employer.

- For most semester and short-term study abroad programs, list the experience in your education/academics section.

EDUCATION

Siena College, Loudonville, NY	05/2019
B.S., Management, Concentration in International Business
Study Abroad, Centre d'Études Franco-Américain de Management, Lyon, France	09/2017-12/2017
Concentration in International Business and French Language/Culture

-
- For programs that included an internship, list the experience in your professional experience section.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Adelphi Theatre, London, England

01/2018-04/2018

Marketing Intern

- Performed market analysis and research on competition
- Designed creative briefs, brochures, and posters for publication
- Supported the Marketing Manager in daily administrative tasks

-
- For service-oriented programs and short-term academic tours, list the experience in your additional experience section.

ADDITIONAL EXPERIENCE

Service Trip, Fontaine, Haiti

01/2018

- Taught English-language classes to students 6-12 years old

Academic Study Tour, Basque Region, Spain

05/2018

- Explored identities of regional culture and how regionalism is expressed through culinary differences and practices

Depending on your experience abroad and the job to which you are applying, you may consider including other types of headers that will showcase your experience abroad and relevant skills for the position and/or organization. These could include:

- Foreign Languages
- Volunteer Experience
- International Experience

Remember to keep your language simple and specific, with action verbs and details on what you did and how your experience is relevant for the position. Use additional resources online and on-campus - particularly Career Education and Professional Development - to assist with proofreading and developing a strong resume.

COVER LETTER

A cover letter complements the experiences outlined in your resume. It should not replicate the same information in a prose style format, but rather highlight the attributes that set you apart from other candidates! Using your experience abroad, the cover letter should demonstrate to an employer - in as explicit language as possible - why you possess the skills and experiences that are a match for the requirements of the job.

Use the questions below to develop a strategy to specifically address your experience abroad in your cover letter.

- What field do you intend to work in?
- How does your experience abroad relate to your field? To the position? To the organization?
- How might your international experience uniquely benefit a professional in that field?

Even if your career goals do not include a specific international dimension at this time, or the job does not require international experience, you can still highlight appropriate transferable skills gained through your time abroad, such as independence, problem-solving skills, and the ability to adapt in different environments.

Consider the examples below of how to include your experience abroad in your cover letter.

My studies in Japan provided me with a great insight into the cultural differences that influence consumers in different countries and will improve my ability to contribute to international marketing initiatives.

During my semester abroad at the University of Glasgow, I participated in a class research project with a small group of university students, where we frequently communicated and worked through issues with external community stakeholders. The skills I developed during this experience will help me succeed and problem-solve in your marketing firm's team-based environment.

INTERVIEW

A good interview is about telling a good story. It's about weaving a narrative in response to questions about your ability to do a job, carry out your responsibilities, and adapt to the organization and its expectations of staff.

When speaking to employers, address the value of both the general and specific skills you developed while studying abroad. It's important to not assume that the interviewer will fully realize how your international experience is relevant to your position. Therefore, be prepared to answer the questions, "Why did you choose to study abroad?" and "How and why did you choose your program/location?"

At the same time, while your experience abroad is important, you should not use it as your only point of reference. If the interviewer asks about your international experience, take it as an opportunity to expand. Don't let the opportunity pass by with a simple, "Yes, it was awesome!"

Consider specific examples from your experience abroad - such as working on a research project, travelling independently, or learning new activities or languages - and integrate them into a brief story that highlights your developed skills. Use the "STAR" technique to answer these behavioral interview questions.

- S - SITUATION: Detail the background. Provide a context. Where? When?
- T - TASK: Describe the challenge and expectations. What needed to be done? Why?
- A - ACTION: Elaborate your specific action. What did you do? How? What tools did you use?
- R - RESULTS: Explain the results: accomplishments, recognition, savings, etc. Quantify if you can.

Lastly, remember to develop your study abroad elevator pitch, a 30-second speech to succinctly sum up and explain your experience abroad. Keep this simple and be sure to highlight how the impact of your experience abroad will push you towards your future goals. Practice the speech out loud so you can deliver it confidently and instinctively when necessary. Consider the questions below as you prepare your elevator pitch:

- What three words come to mind when you think about your time abroad?
- What do you feel people most misunderstand about your time abroad?
- What personal and professional skills did you gain as a result of being abroad?

- How have you changed now that it's over and you're back home?
- What was unexpected during your time abroad?

Remember to focus on what you have done, what you have learned, and what you have gained from your experience abroad, and be ready to wow anyone you meet!

DID YOU KNOW?

Of a surveyed group of study abroad alumni, 78% indicated they were asked to speak about their experience abroad in a job interview.

DIGITIZING YOUR PROGRAM ABROAD: TAILORING YOUR ONLINE PROFILES FOR EMPLOYERS

Job searches today do not take place solely through an interview process or by reading a resume. Your online profile through various social networking sites - LinkedIn, Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram, to name a few - matters just as much. It is therefore vitally important to include, reference, and visualize your experience abroad through your online profiles.

The first and most important tip is to clean up your profile. Check your privacy settings. Review the photos you post and the photos you are tagged in. Use the "View As" feature on Facebook and "Public Profile" function on LinkedIn to see what your profile looks like to a third-party viewer.

It's important to remember that you should not remove all traces of your experience abroad, but merely highlight the best. Showcase what you have done, who you met, and what you learned while abroad. Follow the advice below to best spotlight your international experience through various online platforms.

LINKEDIN

- Like your resume, feature your experience abroad in the Education, Experience, or Volunteer Experience sections of your profile. If you completed an internship or some form of hands-on learning, be sure to reflect the duties and responsibilities of your role. You can add as much detail as you would like, but remember to keep it simple and to-the-point. Focus on what matters most to the field or positions you are looking to apply for.
- LinkedIn also enables you to present skills and promote skills of others. Utilize this feature and incorporate any skills you gained while studying abroad, such as communication, foreign languages, and project management. Be aware though - listing too many skills may give off the wrong impression, and overwhelm potential employers. Include the skills most commonly featured in your field, or in job postings that interest you.
- Most importantly, NETWORK! Connect with local friends, colleagues, professors, staff, organizations, and groups from your program abroad and stay in contact. Support and encourage each other - you never know where these connections may come in handy.

FACEBOOK

- Reflect your passion(s) for your field and/or profession. For example, if you've taught abroad and are applying for positions that require interpersonal communication, teamwork, or advising, be sure to highlight and make public any posts or photos about your role teaching abroad.
- Show off your professional accomplishments and awards. Did you receive a certificate of completion from an internship or course abroad? Were you able to attend formal events hosted by your university, organization, or workplace? Spotlight these images to demonstrate the professionalism you already carry with you.
- Review your past posts and edit the privacy features, as necessary. This does not just mean hide away everything you have posted, but make public any posts that demonstrate strong, professional qualities and experiences, such as blog links, shared news articles, and leadership roles.
- Demonstrate solid grammar and communication skills. Be sure to clean up any controversial or profane language that is public to other viewers.
- Similar to LinkedIn, be sure to network with anyone you meet from your experience abroad, and follow pages of companies, organizations, or groups that interest you and show your global outreach.

TWITTER/INSTAGRAM

- Follow field-specific organizations and share their posts, particularly if you have any personal or professional connection with them from your experience abroad (such as an internship, research, or volunteer work).
- Be aware of how private and personal you are in your posts. If you tend to post photos or content that are more aligned for friends, consider making your account private.
- Remember though that even if your account is private, your username/handle, profile picture, and biography are often not. Make sure this information is professionally presentable.

E-PORTFOLIO

- Digital portfolios paint an entire picture that go beyond a transcript or resume. It helps you say to employers, “Look at me and what I do.” An e-portfolio showcases extra-curricular activities, campus leadership positions, internship programs, international experiences, academic presentations, journal publications, and much more!
- Use the Study Abroad template available through Siena’s e-portfolio site (<http://siena.digication.com>) to represent your experience abroad. For more information, contact Career Education and Professional Development in Foy Hall 203.

DID YOU KNOW?

86% of study abroad alumni indicated that education abroad programs aided their ability to formulate career goals and clarify professional aspirations.

GOING AGAIN: ADDITIONAL OPPORTUNITIES FOR INTERNATIONAL EXPERIENCE

After an incredible experience abroad, it makes sense that you may be itching to travel abroad again, either during your undergraduate career at Siena or after graduation. But how do you make it happen? What options are available? Where do you start?

Before you begin exploring the multitude of international options available to you, consider your motivations and goals for going abroad again:

- What do you hope to gain from this experience? How does this fit into your long-term goals?
- Where do you want to go? What drives you to go there?
- What are the language requirements? What level of working proficiency do you have in the local language?
- How long do you intend to stay abroad? Do you have/need proper documentation (i.e. work visa) to stay for that time period?
- Are you financially able to fund your time abroad? Do you expect to have a paid work position?

You may not have answers to some of these questions - and that's alright! Undertaking further international experience - especially as a graduate - is a worthwhile decision, but it's important to keep in mind the logistics of going abroad for a longer period of time.

This is where we can help! Browse the many options below for further international experiences, and visit the Center for International Programs in Foy Hall 301 to speak to an advisor about going abroad again.

WHILE AT SIENA

Still have another year - or more - left until you graduate? Why not look at more international opportunities available through Siena! Consider the following:

- Semester/Year Abroad

- Siena students can study abroad during their junior year and first-semester of their senior year, with some exceptions made for valid and demonstrated academic reasons. Visit the Center for International Programs to learn more.
- Summer Abroad
 - Spend 3-8 weeks of your summer taking courses or working an internship anywhere in the world.
- Short-Term Program
 - Check out siena.edu/studyabroad to view options such as J-term, SIENAserves Service Immersion Programs, and current/upcoming Academic Study Tours.

TEACH ABROAD

Recognize the skill that you have and can share with others - your language! Teaching English abroad is an excellent way to see the world, gain valuable teaching and professional experience, and build up your resume. There are many organizations out there which offer Teach Abroad opportunities, but here is just a sampling:

- Austria - U.S. Teaching Assistantships at Austrian Secondary Schools
- Chile - CIEE Teach Abroad; English Open Doors Program
- China - CIEE Teach Abroad; API Teach Abroad
- Costa Rica - API Teach Abroad
- Czech Republic - CIEE Teach Abroad
- Dominican Republic - CIEE Teach Abroad
- France - Teaching Assistant Program in France \(TAPIF\)
- Georgia - Teach and Learn in Georgia
- Greece - Greece Fellowship Program
- Japan - JET Programme Assistant English Language Teacher; Interac Assistant Language Teacher
- Mexico - API Teach Abroad
- Morocco - CIEE Teach Abroad
- Portugal - CIEE Teach Abroad \(Volunteer\)

- Spain - CIEE Teach Abroad; Cultural Ambassadors
- South Korea - Teach and Learn in Korea; CIEE Teach Abroad; English Program in Korea
- Thailand - CIEE Teach Abroad; API Teach Abroad; Teach Thailand Corps
- Vietnam - CIEE Teach Abroad; API Teach Abroad
- Multiple Locations - Princeton in Asia; Princeton in Africa; Princeton in Latin America

Additional teaching grants, such as the Fulbright English Language Teaching Assistantship (multiple locations), are also available. Please be advised that you must have a cumulative GPA of at least 3.5 and previous international experience/language ability in order to apply for the Fulbright grants.

GRADUATE SCHOOL ABROAD

Believe it or not, pursuing a graduate degree abroad can often be less expensive and less time-consuming than studying for your Master's/Ph.D in the U.S.! Completing a graduate degree abroad is also a huge spotlight on a resume, and demonstrates further your global understanding of key topics and issues.

Concerned about financing a degree abroad? Many international institutions offer scholarships and funding for U.S. students, and you may even be able to use federal student aid.

There are numerous institutions abroad for you to choose from. Here is a select few that Siena students may be interested in:

- Newcastle University, Business School - Tyne, UK
- Queen's University - Belfast, UK
- Radboud University - Nijmegen, The Netherlands
- University of Cape Town - Cape Town, South Africa
- University College Cork - Cork, Ireland
- University of Edinburgh, Business School - Edinburgh, UK
- University of Glasgow - Glasgow, UK

- University of Leeds, Leeds University Business School - Leeds, UK
- University of Manchester, Alliance Manchester Business School - Manchester, UK

For further opportunities, use the database resources below to help kickstart your international graduate school search:

- International Graduate Programs \(GradSchools.com\)
- Graduate Programs Worldwide \(InternationalGraduate.net\)

INTERNATIONAL GRADUATE FELLOWSHIPS & SCHOLARSHIPS

Want to spend more time abroad and focus on your academic or professional interests? Considering a fellowship opportunity might be the right fit for you! Fellowships are internationally-prestigious and highly-competitive learning opportunities that typically span from six months to two years, and are sponsored by a specific organization or institution. These programs can be designed to support a range of activities including teaching abroad, graduate study in a specific field, research to advance work on a particular issue, and development of a community-based initiative.

Am I A Good Candidate for Fellowships? How Can I Become A Good Candidate?

- The one element most in your control to prepare yourself for a fellowship is your academic performance. Excellence in your coursework is up to you.
- Embrace your international experiences. Whether you took classes in Ireland, did research in Vietnam, or completed an internship in Argentina, be sure to strengthen and highlight the skills and knowledge you have learned from being abroad.
- Stay engaged, involved, and informed. Demonstrate your extracurricular involvement within and outside of Siena's campus, and show off your leadership skills wherever possible. As you formulate your professional goals and interests, make sure you are engaging in relevant activities and opportunities.
- Make your interests clear to your advisors and mentors. If you are considering a fellowship, be sure to communicate this intention to your study abroad advisor, academic advisor, and any mentor you may have. Their support can help you succeed!

Fellowship opportunities are like needles in a haystack. They take a lot of effort to find the right one, and even more work to attain it. Preparation and research are your best friends, so take a look at the list of fellowship opportunities below and reach out to the Center for International Programs to discuss your options further.

- Fulbright U.S. Student Program
 - Fulbright is the flagship international educational exchange program sponsored by the U.S. government and is designed to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries. Since its inception, the Fulbright Program has provided approximately 300,000 participants - chosen for their academic and leadership potential - with the opportunity to study, teach, conduct research, and contribute to finding solutions to shared world problems.
 - These awards are highly competitive. To be considered at the campus-level, you must fit the following criteria:
 - U.S. Citizen
 - Overall GPA of 3.5 or better
 - Teaching/research experience
 - Study abroad/international experience
 - Knowledge of a language other than English (for most programs)
- Marshall Scholarship
 - Marshall Scholarships finance young Americans of high academic and leadership ability to study for a graduate degree in the United Kingdom. Up to forty Scholars are selected annually to study at a UK institution in any field of study.
- Mitchell Scholars Program
 - The Mitchell Scholars Program is a national competitive fellowship sponsored by the US-Ireland Alliance which is designed to introduce and connect generations of future American leaders to the island of Ireland, while recognizing and fostering intellectual achievement, leadership, and a commitment to public service and community. Up to twelve Mitchell Scholars between the ages of 18 and 30 are chosen annually for one year of postgraduate study in any discipline offered by institutions of higher learning in Ireland and Northern Ireland.

- Rhodes Scholarship
 - The Rhodes Scholarship, the oldest international fellowship, brings outstanding students from many countries around the world to the University of Oxford. Rhodes Scholars are chosen not only for their outstanding scholarly achievements, but for their character, commitment to others and to the common good, and for their potential for leadership in their careers.
- Rotary Global Grant
 - Global grants support large international activities with sustainable, measurable outcomes in Rotary's areas of focus. Grant sponsors form international partnerships that respond to real community needs.
- Truman Scholarship
 - The Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation supports the graduate education and professional development of outstanding young people committed to public service leadership. Since its creation in 1975, the Foundation has supported almost 3,000 Truman Scholars who are making a difference in all corners of the nation and around the globe.

For further research into fellowships, browse this comprehensive database from the University of Illinois and talk to the staff at the Center for International Programs.

WORK / VOLUNTEER ABROAD

Although it's important to remember that it can be difficult to jump into the international career of your dreams right after graduation, you should not feel alone! The staff at the Center for International Programs, Career Education and Professional Development, and the Franciscan Center for Service and Advocacy are all available and ready to help you find and secure international "building-block" work and volunteer experiences that will help you realize your professional goals.

One fantastic resource at your disposal is GoinGlobal, an online database which provides tools for fast-tracking your academic and career objectives both domestically and abroad, including job and internships boards, career guides for more than 120 locations around the world, and over 400,000 corporate profiles. Chat with a study abroad advisor or a career counselor to learn more or view a tutorial video here!

If you are considering working abroad, use these additional resources to begin your international employment search:

- Career Education and Professional Development - Always the best place to begin!
- BUNAC - Internship and work opportunities in a variety of locations
- OverseasJobs - International internship and job search engine
- GlobalEdge - International internship directory

If you are are considering volunteering abroad, the Catholic Volunteer Network can serve as a great resource, as can Siena's own Franciscan Center for Service and Advocacy.

DID YOU KNOW?

Of a surveyed group of study abroad alumni, 85% said that participating in a study abroad program broadened the range of sectors in which they were interested in working.

FURTHER RESOURCES ON CAMPUS, AROUND THE WORLD, AND ONLINE

If you take away anything from this toolkit, know this - you have endless support and resources available to you to help you unpack your experience abroad!

Your most important resource, though? EACH OTHER!

Reach out and connect with fellow returnees to talk about your experiences, brainstorm ways to continue doing the great work you did abroad, and keep in touch as you graduate from Siena and pursue your futures!

ON-CAMPUS

- Center for International Programs
 - Location: Foy Hall 301
 - Contact: international@siena.edu, or (518) 786-5047
 - Provides comprehensive advising on undergraduate and postgraduate international experiences, including short- and long-term study abroad, international graduate fellowships, graduate school abroad, and teach abroad

- Career Education and Professional Development
 - Location: Foy Hall 203
 - Contact: careermail@siena.edu, or (518) 783-2339
 - Offers a wide range of services and resources on professional development, including career counseling, resume and cover letter critiques, mock interviews, preparation for graduate school, and job applications

- Office of Internship Programs
 - Location: Siena Hall 214B
 - Contact: internships@siena.edu, or (518) 783-2542
 - Works with students on credit, not-for-credit, paid, and unpaid internships and connects them to employers from an array of industries

- Franciscan Center for Service and Advocacy
 - Location: Hines Hall 232
 - Contact: fcsa@siena.edu, or (518) 783-2333

- Promotes various service and advocacy programs for the Siena community, including volunteering, mentoring, SIENAserves immersion, and post-graduate service opportunities

AROUND THE WORLD

- Study Abroad Program Staff and Administrators
 - Many study abroad organizations eagerly look for student ambassadors and campus representatives. Sign yourself up and gain some professional development by connecting with other returnees around the U.S. and the world, implementing programs to encourage students to go abroad, or writing articles and testimonials about your experience.
 - Stay in touch with your program administrators abroad and keep them updated on your career path.
- Professors, Employers, and Colleagues Abroad
 - Completed an internship or working on research with a faculty member? Developed a close connection with your professor? Maintain these relationships long after you return home - you never know when your paths may cross again!

ONLINE

- CEPD'S Career Guide - Published by Siena's Career Education and Professional Development, this is a great tool to assist in all facets of career development, from resume writing to interview preparation.
- Student Guide to Study Abroad and Career Development - Published by the American Institute for Foreign Study (AIFS), this guide provides students with a framework to understand the value of study abroad on their career development.
- After Study Abroad: A Toolkit for Returning Students - Published by the School for International Training, this toolkit outlines strategies to get back into a global-mindset once your return back home.